“This is not a game about realism,” said FIFA Executive Vice President of Marketing Daniel Li. “We wanted to do things that people don’t do in the real world. You can’t fake like this.” Players can adjust their player models using the new “Dive Tool” that has been enhanced to provide enhanced details in the movement of the ball. Details like ball compression, rebounds and real-time mud-like effects will help players fight for aerial control of the ball. Players will also be able to adjust the force of the ball, allowing footballers to change the characteristics of the ball depending on how they prefer to play. Collaboration with the Netherlands Football Association (KNVB) and improvements to teams’ player DNA made it easier for players to be recognized on the field by spectators and other players. Players can train their attributes by playing against other players with the same traits. Nine-man FIFA Ultimate Team (FUT) introduced “New Archetypes,” which allows players to play as strikers, midfielders, defenders, and goalkeepers in the same player model. Players can now also seamlessly transfer between the different position archetypes. New licenses unveiled in FIFA 22 include licenses from South Africa, Kenya, Ghana, Saudi Arabia, Vietnam, India, Sri Lanka, and the Philippines. Players can now play as the Dutch national team in the Netherlands, the Italian national team in the Netherlands, Israel in Turkey, and more. The Vietnam national team is the first of many upcoming games made available for players to download as a free update. New licenses offer a range of gameplay options Throughout the FIFA 22 gameplay demo, players can notice the new licenses that allows players to experience an entire new game, including the new licenses from the Israel national team in Turkey, and the Vietnam national team in Europe. These content updates will be free updates available on PlayStation Store and Windows PC. A collection of new player archetypes bring different gameplay options and options Throughout the gameplay demo, players can notice that different archetypes have been added, including the new striker archetype, the new defender archetype, and the new defender and midfielder archetype. These different archetypes allow players to experience a different gameplay options from defenders, midfielders and strikers. Additionally, players will be able to select different archetypes for each role in a match. For example, players can
