Magnetic resonance imaging assessment of abnormalities of the brain in a patient with microcephaly. We report the case of a 22-year-old Chinese female patient with microcephaly and cognitive disabilities. The patient had a history of surgery for a left cerebellar arachnoid cyst. The patient was referred to our department at 3 months of age with a history of external hydrocephalus. Brain MRI showed a large arachnoid cyst and ventriculomegaly. The patient was operated on for the arachnoid cyst and the brain status postoperatively improved dramatically. However, the patient could not speak and had behavioral and psychological abnormalities. MRI showed a global symmetric pattern and prominent sulci. The patient was evaluated for CNS infection and encephalitis but neither was found. The authors suggest that this case shows the imaging manifestations of the syndrome of homocystinuria and the association of this syndrome with CNS abnormalities. The present invention relates to a method for manufacturing a semiconductor device in which a thin film to be processed is deposited on a wafer. More specifically, the present invention relates to a method for manufacturing a semiconductor device in which a thin film to be processed is deposited on a wafer to be deposited with a block pattern in a predetermined shape. Semiconductor devices are manufactured by forming patterns on a surface of a semiconductor wafer. Recently, there has been developed a technology of forming a film to be processed on a wafer using a cylindrical block pattern with a block pattern width in a range between 500 and 5,000 μm , and performing chemical mechanical polishing (CMP) to form a planarization film in a predetermined shape. The method of manufacturing a semiconductor device includes forming a resist pattern on a wafer to be processed, depositing a thin film to be processed on the wafer on which the resist pattern is formed, e79caf774b
