When I tried to delete the new files and merge again, it showed me a lot of conflicts with same lines in two different files.

My questions are : Is there any way to merge one file at a time? The merging went like a cakewalk but there are hundreds of conflicts... Is it better to fix all the conflicts and continue, or just go on with my changes? My problem is that I have no idea how to fix the conflicts and the questions above came in my mind but I can't find answers that apply to the problem I'm having. Thanks in advance...

A: So, to answer your second question, how to "do" it, I suggest the following steps: create your working tree (git checkout -b working) resolve the conflicts by editing file, commit in working copy with somename-1 (git commit -m "Fix conflicts in file `somename`") resolve the conflicts by editing file, commit in working copy with somename-2 (git commit -m "Fix conflicts in file `somename`") Repeat this until you have no more conflicts (or until you run into conflicts which do not affect the shared branch base) Then, merge the branches (git merge master -s ours) using System; using System.Collections.Generic; using System.Linq; using System.Text; namespace OSharp.Hosting { /// `/// public class UserFolderTransfer : UserFolderAction { public UserFolderTransfer(UserFolderUser user, string folderPath) : base(user, folderPath)`
